

COVID-19 Update

As global concerns about the coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak continue, our number one priority at Environmental Design Group is protecting and preserving the health and safety of our associates, clients and communities. We aim to do so while also minimizing the disruptions to our day-to-day operations and project timelines.

Environmental Design Group will continue working and will be available to respond promptly to your needs. We understand that deadlines and project timelines cannot be impacted at this point and will remain available to address your concerns. Should anything change, we will be sure to communicate that as well.

Out of an abundance of caution, Environmental Design Group has made the following decisions, effective immediately:

Suspend in-office (hosted at Environmental Design Group) meetings. We will utilize videoconferencing and phone call services to ensure projects can continue;

Limit in-person meeting attendance. Our team's preference is to call in when that option is available. If not available, we will work with you to determine the best approach;

Public Meetings, Presentations and Interviews: We will respect the policies and protocols you set in place. In the event our team does not feel comfortable following those protocols, we will work with you to determine the best approach;

We believe these actions will help to protect our associates while allowing us to continue serving our clients and communities.

As we work together to prepare for the impact of COVID-19 to our communities, we hope to understand your concerns and how we can help. Please consider taking this short survey to help us better understand how we can help our communities move forward.

We intend to remain a reliable resource to our friends and clients. As always, our goal is to communicate often as things change and decisions need to be made. Thank you for your partnership.
